The Call of Nature

Life in the forest is a bit too harmonious. All the animals are friends and they live with an abundance of food in a world with no danger. But one day they discover that the life they are living is an illusion. It turns out they're actually nothing but fodder for an advanced restaurant concept for the grossly wealthy. It's up to the smallest predator in the forest, Sofie the weasel, to save them. But she will only succeed if she can come into contact with her instincts.

The Tower

Warda is 11 years old ? a small girl ? but already a 4th generation refugee. Her world is a camp, and her house is the Tower, where she lives with her big family. In the Palestinian refugee camps, there is no room to build houses wider or longer ? so they have to build upwards, towards the sky. Every generation builds a new floor ? and on every floor there is a new story to be told. And as Warda climbs The Tower, we get to hear them too. This is an animated documentary about the light and darkness that makes up everyday life in a refugee camp. How people survive and how they die. It is a film about a young girl?s dreams, for the future, and the choices she has in life!
